Cinema mode cuts the far edges of the movie screen to minimize the size of the movie letterboxes to propose 2:35:1. There is no false contour, no delay of images, shadow details. If the pioneer is not your choice, I would not hesitate to recommend the PDP-5080HD. While the Pioneer PDP-5080HD A© bright image of the box - It is set to the configuration of the dynamic image, the effect is not bad as most of its competitors. When viewing a HD broadcast over the air signal, there are no motion artifacts in fast motion scenes, the Pioneer PDP-5080HD displayed an excellent color reproduction in our screening of the candidate Manchurian DVD without irregularities are present in the image when viewing HDTV, regular program setting or test µ. As Tony shouts the famous line: "Tell my little friend!" The PDP-5080HD reproduces the intricate details of sweat dripping from its forehead and the coca is not yet fitted to the nose. Full mode extends the image evenly on the screen, while Wide uses a special algorithm to minimize image distortion. There was less pixilation in dark scenes, but this can be attributed to relative weakness of the anal 3 to air. Although the remote control is quite functional, it is an opaque gray color - does not correspond to the bright black finish of the TV - and it is a little chintzy. The current market price for the PDP-5080HD is about $3,000. Image: 98.5 / 100 Our initial impression of Pioneer's latest offering is excellent. Set up ideal image µ for the Pioneer PDP-5080HD using ISF calibration. Drive stands out with Units - - sadaratas seroc saleb e soicr e sodnuforp with HD content. The aspect ratio settings are: 4:3 (with sidebars), Full, Zoom, Cinema, and Wide. There are several other inputs, as well as three component video inputs, four composite video inputs, two S-Video connections and one PC input. The PDP-5080HD continues with a power-saving mode to reduce power consumption. We strongly suggest that if you own or buy a Pioneer PDP-5080HD, you can mimic these image settings and save several hundred dollars by doing so (instead of having a calibration expert set it up the same way). When reviewing this unit from top to bottom, the word "quality" echoes completely. Pioneer continues to market to the aficionado and high-end AV home theater market and focus on engineering dollars and attention on plasma technology. Almost any device that generates 1080p can also generate the smallest, but combined 1080i or 720p. The PDP-5080HD also seemed to have improved non brightness performance. In addition, the PDP-5080HD has the Interactive Program Guide on the TV Screen Guide. Changing the picture mode to Pattern or Cinema is a quick solution to enjoy a more natural picture. A further update in the PDP-5080HD over the previous nominal import model is the acceptance of 1080p signals. The Pioneer PDP-5080HD's On-Screen menu system is easy to navigate with all applicable categories, Image, Audio, etc., easily recognizable. Image reproduction and upconversion to standard definition looks pretty good when compared to the rest of the industry. Improvements over the PDP-5070HD include a dramatically improved level of black and small improvements in When compared to the leading manufacturers of LCD panel, Pioneer still has a price of less than a LCD Sharp or Sony 1080p 52.â € The unit has a professional sensation and has a friendly menu . Global (double weight): 95/100 * evaluation scale of 70 (denoting the worst quality) to 100 (meaning the best quality). Other consideration: 97/100 aesthetically the PDP-5080HD is relatively unchanged from its predecessor, the PDP-5080HD. Pioneer includes split / picture-in-picture screen functionality. To test the PDP-5080HD Pioneer with standard definition input, we witness a Law and Order reprise through the local channel. Despite the highest price, the PDP-5080HD is perfect for those consumers who want the best estate, connectivity, performance and quality. The remote control buttons are logically arranged and properly dimensioned. To totally optimize the color playback of our PDP-5080HD, we use a colorimeter, a High-Definition SENCORE signal generator and a specialized software package to calibrate the television according to the standard color temperature D6500K’s Imaging Science Foundation (ISF). When configuring the TV to the settings found below, we can keep the color temperature between D6400K and D6600K, depending on the brightness of the image. The Purecinema is then necessary to properly unveil the content of film transfer. The result is a more dimensional image. Model: Pioneer PDP-5080HD Description: 50A € Plasma Television, Widescreen 16: 9 Format resolution: 1366 x 768 (HDTV-720p) Includes: Integrated pedestal support and column system Integrated, NTSC and ATSC (HDTV) tuners, 4 High Definition HDMI inputs, 3 Veheo Component, 4 Composite Vehine, 2 S-Video Connections, Input. The introduction of HD signals realized the performance potential of Pioneer’s deep cell structure. In addition, Pioneer is one of the few brands to include the much-criticized CableCard slot on their latest TV series. Other smaller improvements include 4 HDMI inputs instead of 2. While connecting your components to the correct input connections can be a daunting task for the daily consumer, the direct input buttons on Pioneer’s included universal remote control make it possible to switch inputs with ease. All these features compare to the updated models of Panasonic and Samsung. As our PDP-5080HD test has been calibrated with ISF-certified equipment, using Pioneer’s proprietary image enhancements such as PureCinema, it is not necessary unless you are viewing film sources. If you’re watching in a dark or semi-dark environment, you can use this feature. Most LCD televisions have a “flat” appearance by comparison.
